Climate change impacts on water resources in Canada vary regionally. Increase in annual total precipitation across the country during the current century. 